Why am i not getting text notifications on my fitbit versa 2. Fitbit versa 2 text notifications not working android. Why aren't my notifications working on my fitbit versa 2.

Select Notifications. Android users, check these settings. For Fitbit Pay-enabled trackers, swipe left to access the quick settings screen. Search for the Fitbit app and choose Don't optimize (or not optimized.) Also check: Settings > Apps & notifications > Notifications > Notifications on lock screen and set to Show conversations. Set a sleep mode schedule in the Settings app. Tap your account picture or icon in the top left-hand corner. Charge 3 — On the clock screen, press and hold the button. You'll need to set your Fitbit device up again. Ace 2, Charge 2, and Inspire & Inspire HR — On your home screen (the clock screen), press and hold the button to reach the quick settings screen. Do you sync your Fitbit with more than one mobile device? Select your Fitbit device. Luxe — Swipe down from your Luxe's clock face to access its quick setting. Verify that DND mode and Sleep mode settings are off. This is intended behavior and cannot be changed. Turn off battery optimization and limitations. Change the view to All apps. Find your Fitbit and tap on it. This halts communications between your smartphone and smartwatch. Turn your wrist toward you to see the notification. Find the Fitbit app, then swipe it off the top of your screen. You must manually disable it. For an iPhone, swipe up on the home screen to the app switcher. For Fitbit Sense and Versa 3, there's an additional mode called Focus mode that silences notifications and calls during workouts with the Exercise app. Restart your Fitbit There's an old saying, "did you try unplugging it and plugging it back in?" Although technology is much more advanced than 20 years ago, this adage still applies from time to time. Turn off all notifications, including app notifications. Surge — Swipe the touchscreen until you get to the Settings menu, then find Notifications. This gives your device a "fresh" start without needing to set everything up again. Make sure your phone is within 30 feet of your Fitbit. Before jumping into your phone, make sure that you turned on your Fitbit device's Notification setting. Are you too far away? If not, your Fitbit will become just a digital watch until you get back within range. Force Quit This next option is a straightforward one, as Fitbit suggests you Force Quit the Fitbit app. Those who recently updated the Fitbit app reboot your mobile device and then try setting up notifications again. Go to Settings > Notifications > Messages and turn on Allow Notifications. Look at notification settings on your Fitbit device: Blaze — Hold the top right button for 3 seconds. Apple iPhone users, check these settings. Start your Fitbit's Bluetooth connection from scratch If all else fails, you will need to go through and set up notifications again from scratch. Go to Apps > Fitbit app > Advanced > Battery > Battery optimization. Other methods that help when notifications aren't showing up on your Fitbit The methods above are likely some of the easiest ways to get your Fitbit back in working order. When you use the Do Not Disturb setting on your phone, you don't receive notifications. If the icon appears dim with a line through it, tap it once to turn notifications on. The other method for checking notifications involves the Fitbit app on your phone, tablet, etc. Of course, this method is only suggested if your Fitbit is working in every other capacity. The screen's brightness is set to dim. This can be done in a variety of ways, depending on the device that you have. So it's a good practice to use only one mobile device with your Fitbit consistently. Then, tap DND and verify do not disturb and sleep mode settings are not on. Scroll and find the app in question. If you don't read the notification when it arrives, you can check it later in the Notifications app. But your mileage may vary if you own a different tracker. For iPhone: go to Settings > General > iPhone Storage > Fitbit app > Delete app. Also, make sure battery optimization is set to not optimized for the Fitbit app. On an Android device, you access the multitasking menu. Ace 3 and Inspire 2 — Press and hold the side buttons. Verify that DND and Sleep mode settings are off. For Android: go to Settings > Apps & Notifications > Show all apps > Fitbit > Uninstall. Tried everything but left wondering how you can get your Fitbit to show your text messages and other notifications and alerts? When you see the Fitbit logo, let go of the buttons. Are your text notifications immediately disappearing or not staying on your Fitbit's screen very long? Make sure DND mode and Sleep mode are off. If you aren't receiving notifications on your Fitbit and don't know why or how to fix it, this article is for you! Various Fitbit owners complain that notifications have stopped working altogether regardless of the type of device—so it's impacting both iPhones and Android devices. On Fitbit smartwatches like the Sense, Versa, or Ionic, and the Luxe tracker, swipe to see your Quick Settings options. View your notifications in the Notifications app. To temporarily turn off notifications on your Fitbit device, swipe down from the clock screen to access quick settings tap DND mode or sleep mode. Delete the Fitbit app and reinstall If you tried all the steps above and still cannot get your notifications to show up on your Fitbit, then uninstall and reinstall the Fitbit app. The first culprit of this is due to how far away you are from your smartphone. For iPhones using iOS 15+, look in your Focus Settings to find do not disturb, sleep, and similar options. Depending on your model, you may have a distinct notification setting (like on the Inspire Series trackers) or Do Not Disturb (DND) and Sleep mode settings. For example, these are the steps to restart your Sense, Versa Series, Blaze, or Ionic: Press and hold the button (Sense and Versa 3,) the back button (Versa 2 and Versa Lite), or the back and bottom buttons (Versa, Blaze, and Ionic) for around 10 seconds. Finally, confirm that Share System Notifications are on via your phone's Bluetooth settings > Your Fitbit > System Notifications. From there, you can swipe away the app and re-open to check to see if everything is working. Charge 4 — From the clock screen, press and hold the button, and swipe left to the quick settings screen. However, here are the steps you need to take to set up notifications from scratch. Open the Settings app on your device. To do this, you'll need to follow these steps: Open the Fitbit app. To see any unread notifications, swipe down from the top of your Fitbit's screen. Performing a restart on your Fitbit varies, depending on the device that you own. If you don't set a schedule, you must disable it manually. Check your Fitbit's notification settings The first issue is that you did not set up the Fitbit app to send notifications to your Fitbit device. Well, your notifications might stop after a certain distance threshold has been met. If you clear a notification from your phone, the notification is removed from your device. Temporarily turn off notifications When you turn on the do not disturb or driving mode setting on your phone, your Fitbit device receives notifications but won't alert you. For older models with a home button, double press the home button and then swipe the Fitbit app off the top of your screen. Frankly, we have trouble with notifications not showing up even when syncing with our iPhone and iPad. So let's check those out. Ionic, Sense, & Versa Series — Swipe down from the top of the screen and tap the quick settings icon (Ionic and older Versas) or swipe left from the clock face (Versa 3 and Sense). Check that both sleep (crescent moon icon) and DND (minus symbol) are off. Find the option to Forget Device. Refresh Another way to get your Fitbit working again is to refresh the notification settings. Related reading How to get notifications from your phone to your Fitbit While it's usually a simple thing to fix, there are many reasons why your notifications aren't showing up! So let's run through the most common things to cause Fitbit notification issues. Verify that you turned on notifications in your phone settings and within the Fitbit app. Or on your clock face, swipe up, and make sure notifications are turned on. Quick checklist Download and install the newest version of the Fitbit app from the Apple App Store or Google Play Store. Summary These are just some methods you can use if you run into issues with notifications on your Fitbit. If one of these worked for you, let us know in the comments below! If you found a different method than the ones listed above, let us know to add it to the list! Oh, and be sure to mention which device you are using to help others figure out the problem. Notifications are stored on the device. See incoming notifications Swipe right or left to the Notifications app, then swipe up to open it. You can schedule sleep mode to turn on and off automatically. Since Fitbit saves your count information on its servers, deleting the app and reinstalling it does not result in data loss. Make sure you allow the Fitbit app to run in the background on your phone. Love your Fitbit but not receiving any text messages, notifications, or calls from your phone to your Fitbit? Disable any battery-saving feature on your paired phone, such as Low Power mode for Apple devices or Battery Saver on Android. The do not disturb icon illuminates in the quick settings. Today, we're going to look at a few different methods to troubleshoot before calling it quits. For other Fitbit models or a step-by-step, see this article: Need to restart or reset your Fitbit device? So it's easy to miss one or two. For Fitbit band models like Ace, Charge, and Inspire Series, hold the side button or buttons, and go to Quick Settings. However, there are still some others that you can try before giving up. Restart your phone. For Android, tap the item, then turn it on. Then, checkmark Notification Center, Lock Screen, and Banners. Change the Shows Previews setting to Always or When Unlocked. Scroll down and look for notifications. Say that you're cleaning around the house and leave your phone in one room. When you turn on Sleep mode, the following occurs on your watch: Notifications, goal celebrations, and reminders to move are muted. Charge 5 — On your clockface, swipe down from the top of the screen to access quick settings. Turn off Do Not Disturb and Sleep Mode (if available) on your phone and Fitbit. If you're not receiving notifications during exercise only, turn off Focus mode in Settings > Quiet modes > Focus mode. To reinstall, visit the Apple App Store or Google Play Store and download and install the Fitbit app again. Tap a notification to expand it. From there, you need to go back into the Fitbit app and set up the device as if you just opened it. To reject a call, tap the red phone icon. Select Bluetooth. The Always-On Display clock face is turned off. For iPhone, toggle On any app you want to show notifications on your Fitbit. And Fitbit only shows notifications when the device is unlocked. Performing this task has been known to knock out any cobwebs. Sleep mode vs. When you turn on DND, the following occurs on your watch: Notifications, goal celebrations, and reminders to move are muted. In the case of Fitbit, your smartphone must be within 30 feet for it to transmit correctly. The sleep mode icon illuminates in the quick settings. Check your phone for the full message. DND does not automatically turn off. When we sync our devices with more than one mobile device (especially two phones), our notifications often disappear or go haywire. That's because your Fitbit can only receive notifications from one phone—when you allow your Fitbit to view (and send) texts, you create a bond between that phone and your Fitbit. For more information, see How do I navigate my Fitbit device? Note: If you have an Android phone, you can set your Fitbit device to always send you notifications: Tap the Today tab your profile picture Notifications. In the Vibration Settings section, turn on the Always Vibrate option. Answer or reject calls If paired to an iPhone or Android phone, your Fitbit device lets you accept or reject incoming phone calls. The nice thing here is that you won't have to worry about repairing the Fitbit, as your devices should communicate. To check if you enabled this, go to Settings > Quiet modes > Focus mode and toggle it off. Once you're back in range, everything should go back to normal. Notifications automatically disappear from your Fitbit once you review messages on your paired phone. Your Fitbit device vibrates when you receive a notification. To check the notification settings, you'll need to follow these steps: Look at notification settings using your Fitbit app: Open the Fitbit app. Notification tips In the Notifications app: To delete 1 notification, tap the notification swipe up and tap Clear. To delete all notifications at once, swipe up until you reach the end of your notifications and tap Clear All. For longer notifications, tap the notification to see the full message. To exit the notifications screen, swipe right. If you clear a notification from your device, the notification is removed from your phone's notification center. This forces your Fitbit to restart, bringing you back to the "home page" once completed. Tap Notifications, then tap App Notifications (if applicable). Your Fitbit can only bond with one phone at a time. Ensure the Fitbit app runs in the background by going to Apps & Notifications > Fitbit app and turning off Background restrictions or Background limits. Note that you can't speak into the device—accepting a phone call answers the call on your nearby phone. To accept a call, tap the green phone icon on your tracker's screen. Learn the steps. The screen stays dark when you turn your wrist. Notifications only appear on your Fitbit device for a few seconds If you do not interact with those notifications, they automatically disappear from your device's screen. Phone calls Name or number of the caller appears. Do Not Disturb on your Fitbit It's easy to get confused with the differences between DND and sleep modes. While both modes mute notifications, sleep mode reduces your screen's brightness and prevents the display from turning on when you move. Check that you turned on Bluetooth on your phone and that your phone has notifications on. Occasionally, everything may be working on your Fitbit, and then all of a sudden, it stops. Your tracker shows the first 250 characters of the notification. If you have an iPhone or Android phone, you can also accept or reject calls on your Fitbit device. Text messages Name or number of the sender and the message appear. Calendar alerts Name, location, and time of the event appear. Email notifications Name of the sender, subject, and message appear. App notifications App name and message appear. Use Banner Style > Persistent (default is temporary.) Repeat for the Fitbit app, the Phone app, Calendar app, and any other app that you want to see notifications for on your Fitbit. There are a lot of notification settings to check on Apple devices. To check this, you can do so in two different ways: via the Fitbit app or on your Fitbit device. Syncing often prevents or delays notifications. Open the Fitbit app and toggle notifications on. If you sync your Fitbit with more than one phone, make sure you turn notifications on for only one phone and turn them off on the other—that way, they won't interfere. Tap your device icon in the top left-hand corner.
